LAZARUS INTERNATIONAL
JEFFREY V. LIVER
FOUNDATION

Prof Jeffrey V. Lazarus is an associate research professor at the Barcelona Institute of Global Health (ISGlobal), Hospital Clínic, University of Barcelona and an associate professor at the Faculty of Medicine, University of Barcelona, Spain. His decade-long career as a health systems, HIV and hepatitis expert at WHO's Regional Office for Europe was followed by three years at the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria, where he led knowledge translation, and then 7 years at the WHO Collaborating Centre on HIV and Viral Hepatitis, in Copenhagen. He is the past director of Health Systems Global and former board chair of the foundation AFEW International.

While at WHO, Prof Lazarus cofounded the multistakeholder HIV in Europe Initiative (now EuroTest), where he still sits on the steering committee. He currently serves as the founding co-chair of the HIV Outcomes Beyond Viral Suppression coalition, a member of the INHSU international educational committee and as a working group chair of the EASL-Lancet European Liver Commission. He is the author of more than 200 publications and serves on the editorial board of HIV Medicine, the International Journal of Drug Policy and the Journal of Hepatology. His current scientific work includes leading the European NAFLD policy review, the Lancet HIV Beyond Viral Suppression series, the Copenhagen HCV T'nT Study and various HCV micro-elimination efforts as well as being a co-investigator of INTE-Africa, a European Commission funded cluster RCT in Tanzania and Uganda. #NOhep
